

Terror Rides Congo; Whites Airlifted

By ROBERT M. LINDSAY

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Rebellious Congolese troops were reported terrorizing whites today in two key cities—Luluabourg and Stanleyville—as fleets of planes rushed to bring European refugees from the strife-torn African nation.

Belgian paratroops arrived in Luluabourg to control the native troops rampaging in far-flung sectors of Belgium's former colony in central Africa.

Luluabourg, in the center of the Congo and once intended to become the republic's new capital, was reported still in a state of near panic, with multitudes of whites fleeing to the hills, attacking white civilians and looting homes and stores.

At least 10 Europeans were killed in the weekend of violence. Official Belgian reports said three were killed and one wounded when African rebels besieged hundreds of whites in a hotel in Luluabourg Sunday. They were rescued by Belgian paratroops.

Seven Europeans, including the Italian vice consul, and 25 Congolese were killed in fighting at Elisabethville, capital of the rich Katanga province in the lower Congo.

Boy, 13, Makes Like Railroad

Train dispatchers up and down the Missouri Pacific main line found a kidder on the wire Sunday night. A youthful voice quipped about train movements and cordially passed the time of day to the railroaders.

Hope city police were called, and in a local railroad dispatcher's booth they found a 13-year-old boy talking his head off.

Police located his parents and released the boy in their custody.

4,000 Jam Arkla on Old Timers Day

JEMMETT, Ark. — The rafters and brush arbors rang at Arkla Village here last Saturday as Arkansas' senior citizen-pioneers were given a special tribute at Old Timers Day.

A crowd estimated at some 4,000 jammed the village grounds for the five-hour afternoon speaking and entertainment programs, and it swelled to an estimated 10,000 for the Gala Louisiana Hayride radio show in the evening.

The day-activities began about 12:30 p. m. with a cutting horse demonstration and fiddlers' contest. This was followed by a speaking and entertainment program which was highlighted by a tribute to Arkansas' old timers by Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Other speakers included former Nevada County Judge Randolph Hamby; Little Rock Attorney Neil Bullinger; former State Attorney General Jack Holt; A. J. Stephens of Pocatontas, father of V. R. (Witt) Stephens, president and board chairman of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., which owns Arkla Village; and John L. Wilson, deputy prosecuting attorney for this area.

State Sen. Olen Hendrix, of Prescott, chairman of the two-county Old Timers' Day Committee, presided.

Winner of the Gospel singing contest was the Lee White Quartet, of Prescott, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Tom White, Eugene Lee and Bessie Lee, with Ellen Kennedy as the accompanist.

Other hymn-singing groups who participated were: A girls' Trio from Rocky Mount; The Bodewy Girls' Duo; the Mitchell Family Trio; and the Garrett Memorial Trio, both of Hope; the Stamps Trio; and the Pisgah Quartet from Delight. David Pearson, of Delight, was the soloist.

Russia Downs Second Plane of U. S. A.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today it shot down an American RB-47 reconnaissance plane July 1 over Soviet territory and that two crewmen parachuted to safety and are being questioned.

This was the first word of the plane since it disappeared July 1 with six men aboard while on an electromagnetic mapping flight over waters north of Norway and the Soviet Union.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko summoned U.S. Charge D'Affaires Edward Freers and handed him a note protesting violation of Soviet air space by the plane.

Similar notes were given to Britain and Norway because the plane was temporarily based in England and was expected to land at a Norwegian air field.

A Soviet announcement said the survivors would be prosecuted "with full severity of Soviet law."

The two captured fliers were Lt. John R. McCone, 38, Tonganoxie, Kan., and Lt. Freeman B. Olmstead, 24, Elmira, N.Y.

The note did not mention the fate of the other members of the crew of six.

The latest Soviet note followed by two days a Moscow announcement that Francis Powers, pilot of the downed American U2 spy plane, would be tried for espionage. Power's plane was downed deep inside Soviet Union May 1 while on a high altitude photographic mission.

The incident, kicked up an international furor and was used by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to call off the Paris summit meeting even before it started.

Today's note said the Soviet air force picked up a trace of the plane while it was over the Barents Sea proceeding toward Soviet territory. When it reached the Soviet border at the Kola Peninsula, it was shot down.

Ed Schooley Woods Cabin Burns Down

The woods cabin that Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schooley built in leisure time on the Hope-Oakhaven and burned to the ground about 1:30 this morning. Hope Fire Department sent their tank truck out to the scene on a call from Harry Phillips of Oakhaven, but the entire structure was demolished.

Mr. Schooley said he couldn't estimate the loss because their own labor went into the building. He said it was the first fire they had ever had.

The Schooleys spent Sunday afternoon at the cabin getting holes to keep rats from getting through the ceiling, and they noted no special fire hazard during that visit.

Behind the Scenes as Democratic Convention Opens in Los Angeles

By SAUL PETT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Democratic National Convention opens today with a rising feeling of sinking suspense.

The experts say it's all over but the shouting. Now if we could only eliminate the shouting.

This convention is like a ball game which already has been played and the score posted but the starting pitchers still insist on warming up. Everyone says that Kennedy is in. Everyone but Johnson and Symington, who smile bravely and say they are still encouraged. Stevenson still says he's not actively in the race, and he never seemed more right.

After four days of public hearings, the Platform Committee has gone into hiding to draft a plat-

Kennedy Seems Sure of Nomination as Convention Begins

Harsh Civil Rights Plank Seems Likely

By OVID A. MARTIT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A plank pledging a bold federal attack on racial discrimination, written over strong Southern objections, appeared headed today for adoption in the Democratic party platform.

The platform goes before the Democratic National Convention Tuesday after preliminary action today by the full Platform Committee. Approval by both groups seemed certain.

But unanswered was what Dixie delegates might do about it. They could walk out of the convention in protest as some did in 1952 to express dissatisfaction with a civil rights stand taken then. Or they could stay and fight out the issue on the convention floor and take a probable defeat.

Their final decision, some of them said, was tied to the fate of the candidacy of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas for the party's presidential nomination.

Southern backers of the Texas man were reluctant to stir up too much trouble at this point, lest such action embarrass him with Northern delegates who support him for the nomination but also favor a strong civil rights declaration.

They said drastic action by Southern delegates might well be associated with Johnson, himself, as he represents a Southern state and has many Dixie votes for the nomination.

Northern civil rights groups were jubilant over the plank approved Sunday night by a 20-member drafting committee of the convention's full 169-member resolutions committee. It gave them just about everything they had hoped for. The drafting committee also approved other planks covering foreign and other domestic issues, but civil rights promised the biggest fight.

Speaking for the Southland delegates, Sen. Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina said he could not accept the civil rights proposal. He was one of four Southerners on the drafting committee. However, two of these were absent from the session at which the plank was approved. Significantly, one of the absentees was Rep. Paul J. Kilday of Texas, a Johnson supporter.

Ervin declined to speculate, however, on what steps that Dixie delegates might take.

Wording of the plank was not made public. But it promised to use full legislative and administrative powers of the federal government to end racial discrimination in voting, public education, employment, housing, and other fields.

The proposal also expressed sympathy and understanding for what it called peaceful sit-in demonstrations carried on by student groups in many parts of the South against lunch-counter restrictions.

These demonstrations have evoked bitter Southern criticism and arrest of many participants.

Ervin contended the reference to the sit-in strikes would, in effect, constitute party endorsement of the demonstrations.

The good, gray Johnson people still say that Kennedy is too young for the job. But if somehow the balloting should go beyond the fourth or fifth ballot, Kennedy will be old enough in that time for any job.

A man in a blue suit and a white shirt, Johnson-for-president, happened to be sitting near the senator's reception room. A woman and her young son walked up and asked for a bottle. The man said he was sorry he couldn't help her. "Come on, junior," the woman said, pulling her son. "They're assisting in the anti-submarine protection of the Pacific Fleet."

Arkansas Delegation in Caucus

By GORDON BROWN

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Arkansas' Democratic Convention delegation has its initial caucus today. Leaders said it is doubtful any conclusion will be reached on who will get the state's 27 votes for the presidential nomination.

"There's no hurry," said Tom Harper of Fort Smith, state chairman. "The balloting stage won't be reached until about Wednesday."

Harper said the initial caucus probably will be devoted to organization and "sounding off a little."

He said Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas has much support among the Arkansians but added, "There's some support right now for all the candidates."

It will be up to the delegation, he said, to decide how it will cast its 27 votes on the first ballot. The delegation will be bound by the unit rule.

Today's caucus was slated to follow the breakfast which Mrs. Jack Carnes, democratic national committeewoman for Arkansas, traditionally gives the state delegation.

Sen. Johnson and Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas were the invited guest of honor.

Several members of the delegation said they took for Gov. Orval Faubus to interrupt his primary campaign and head for the convention, probably arriving Wednesday.

Harper said, however, that there is no plan to have the delegation Continued on Page Two

Only Doubt Is Victory on First Ballot

By JACK BELL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Democratic National Convention opens today with Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts booked solidly as a sure shot for the party's presidential nomination.

Barring some unforeseen last-hour development, Kennedy seemed likely to walk away with the coveted prize in balloting beginning Wednesday. Whether he would take it on the first count still was somewhat problematical. But that he would take it there remained little doubt.

Crusading rivals kept their campaigns going. But Adlai Stevenson, a two-time winner of jackpots in this political gamble, said he was willing to accept a Cabinet post as a consolation prize.

"There were some rather strong indications that supporters of Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) were about to lose in the sponge," they denied this, of course, but the seeming futility of opposing the Kennedy juggernaut impressed itself deeply on some Symington backers.

Steve Langmuir, Arizona national committeeman, told a reporter he understands consideration is being given in the Symington camp to releasing the 104 convention votes supporters claim the Missouri senator has nailed down on the first ballot.

Any such action could be fatal blow to the efforts of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas to hold the line in the early counting and thus open the way for selection later of either himself or some other candidate.

Langmuir is pledged to Kennedy on the first ballot and said he will stick through the second tally. If additional votes are needed, Langmuir said, he is prepared to switch to Johnson on the third counting.

Kennedy backers said they are confident they will get more than half of the Symington votes if they are released.

Former President Harry S. Truman's double-reverse decision not to attend the convention after all cast a deep pall of gloom over the Symington camp. Symington dismissed the decision with the comment that "Mr. Truman always does what he thinks is best."

All of the presidential hopefuls came together Sunday night in a typical Hollywood setting—a festooned Beverly Hills hotel ballroom in which breath-taking space was at a premium.

Stevenson, greeted by a storm of applause, was lyrical. Tensely, Kennedy ripped off an old campaign speech at a furious gait. Symington played it down. He said nobody had done him wrong in the preliminaries of the convention, which gets under way late today.

sula, a fighter plane took off and identified the plane by its American Air Force markings.

The note said the Soviet pilot ordered the American plane to land but the pilot refused and kept moving in over Soviet territory.

When the refusal to land continued, the note said, the Soviets shot down the American plane.

The Soviet note accused Britain of being an accomplice of the United States in "hostile acts" and warned of possible consequences.

The U.S. Air Force said the plane was mapping magnetic fields in the extreme north of the world in a survey intended to provide information for more accurate maps.

The missing plane, normally based at Forbes Air Force Base at Topeka, Kan., was about 1,200 miles from the North Pole when it made its last radio report.

A Pentagon spokesman explained the magnetic force affecting conventional compasses varies in direction over different parts of the earth and at different times.

Navigation charts show these variations in degrees along curving lines, and corrections are made from year to year.

Asst. Secretary of Defense Murray Snyder said he was sure the plane made no deliberate attempt to fly over the Soviet Union. He said he based this opinion on the order to halt reconnaissance flights over Soviet territory following the U2 spy plane incident.

In addition to McCone and Olmstead, the crewmen of the plane have been identified by a Forbes Air Force Base spokesman as:

Capt. Eugene E. Posa, 38, originally from Santa Monica, Calif.;

Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Lt. Dean B. Phillips, 25, Inwood, N.Y.; and Lt. Oscar L. Goforth, 26, Sardis, Okla.

Mark Twain warned men not to take their dog to heaven. He wrote: "Heaven goes by favor. If it went by merit, you would stay out and the dog would go in."

Last time to call the club to order for the Tuesday luncheon of the Rotary meeting at the Lee Hotel, Rev. Douglas B. Finch, supply minister at the First Presbyterian Church gave the invocation. 32 members and guests were present.

Newly elected officers were installed. W. J. Bill Oates, newly elected president, occupied the chair.

W. P. Cummings had charge of the program. He introduced Bob Reynolds, Jr., and David Purtle, radio operators, they explained the various functions of the set and answered many questions about the mechanism of the equipment.

Dick Huie, attorney and rotarian at Arkadelphia, and Rev. Douglas B. Finch were guest of D. L. McRae, Jr. David Purtle and Bob Reynolds, Jr., were guest of W. P. Cummings. Their Hanning and Frank Gilbert were congratulated on their birthdays, June 29th and July 11th.

COUNTERFEIT GENTLEMAN

THE STORY: Artemus Baldwin, Secret Service operative, is cultivating the friendship of the Beauregards, including Jennifer.

Chapter XIII

Open country was not so easy to find. Where, a few years ago, there had been nothing but unbroken desert over which one could ride at will for miles and miles, there were today clusters of little, neat houses in subdivisions, groups of more pretentious houses with green lawns and the transplanted palms, guest ranches with their buidles of cabins. The once-arid valley was well on its way to becoming a solidly built community where horsemen must keep to the roads.

Jennifer and Artemus turned hopefully westward toward the Mummy Mountain.

"Isn't that," she said, "where the Roaches live?"

"It is," said Artemus, surprised, for his mind had been on other things than their whereabouts.

"Who are they?" Jennifer inquired.

"I wouldn't know," Artemus answered. "Nice people."

"But not choosy," Jennifer said.

They were almost abreast of the Roche residence. A wild "Yip-e-e" assailed their ears, and a Pomfret Lionel atop a pinto pony dashed out of the driveway at a headlong gallop. He was hatless; he wore a faded shirt and disreputable dungarees, but he rode like a centaur. At his heels, mounted on a sleek palomino, came his sister, also hatless, also wearing a faded shirt and disreputable dungarees, and her yipe-e was as shrill as her brother's. They reached the road, swung with superb horsemanship and without slackening speed, to their right, and then, becoming aware of Jennifer and Artemus in their way, they halted their horses with astounding suddenness, throwing up a cloud of dust and pebbles as they slid to a stop.

Jick leaped from the saddle, slapped Pomfret Lionel between the shoulders and said "Tag" triumphantly.

"No tag," Pomfret Lionel protested. "These dudes got in the way."

"Dudes," said Jick, "count as obstacles, like fences or crows or ditches."

"Ya-a-h," the boy said disgustedly, and then suddenly he had manners. "Hope we didn't scare you. It's Miss Beauregard and Mr. Baldwin, isn't it?"

"We do apologize," Jick said, without looking at all apologetic. She blinked as she took in Artemus and his regalia. "Goodness gracious!" she exclaimed.

"Where's the men's fashion show?"

Artemus grinned feebly. "You like it?" he asked.

"Mr. Baldwin," she said, "I'm plumb devastated." She smiled at Jennifer, her quick eyes missing no detail. "You're lovely," she said frankly. "Next time you want to ride, telephone me. I'll lend you a horse with four legs. Heading anywhere in particular?"

"Just riding, Miss Roche."

"Come along and we'll show you where. This valley's getting cluttered."

She swung her palomino pony and took her place beside Jennifer.

Artemus and Pomfret Lionel rode side by side behind them.

"I don't get much chance to ride lately," Pomfret Lionel said importantly. "I'm terribly busy. I had to kind of humor Jick this morning."

"What's keeping you so busy?" Artemus asked.

"I'm learning to be a Secret Service man," the boy said. "You got to learn to shoot, but dad won't buy me a pistol. Only times he lets me shoot is when he's with me."

"They tell me," Artemus said, "that there are a lot of things you have to learn before you take up shooting."

"Yeah. I'm studying books, but right now I'm concentrating on counterfeits. I bet you I'm as expert on counterfeit as the boss."

man of the whole Secret Service. Do you know," he asked, "that a lot of nitwits think you got to have an engraver to make plates — I mean, like Jim the Penman — 'Isn't it done that way?' Artemus asked guilelessly.

"Photograving," Pomfret Lionel said tersely. "You take a picture of bill and then transfer it to your plate and bring it out with chemicals. Copper plate, generally, but sometimes steel. The Treasury Department prints 18 bills to the sheet. The way you detect counterfeiters is because you can't get your plates so sharp and clearcut as you can with the ruling machines and things like that the Government uses."

"You sure have studied," Artemus admired.

"Where a good engraver would come in," Pomfret Lionel said, "would be touching up the plates. Getting rid of blurs and making the eyes of the portraits more natural and sharpening up the little points."

Over at the left Mummy Mountain reared its blackness. Halfway up its slope a house perched adventurously.

"There's old Bayside's house," he informed Artemus. "It was a long, low building on a rise which must have given a magnificent view of the valley and the distant mountains."

"He," said Pomfret Lionel confidentially, "is a drip."

"Is that," asked Jennifer, "the artist who was at your house?"

"Walker Bayside," Jick said.

"He invited me to drop in and see his paintings," Jennifer said.

"Would it be amusing?"

"It might be," Jick said.

Science Shrinks Piles

New Way Without Surgery

Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H.

At a news conference at the White House, Eisenhower declined to go to any extent into the Cuban crisis. For example, he brushed aside a question about his reaction to a hint by Cuba's President that Cuba might demand the United States abandon its Guantanamo naval base.

The President declared he would wait for such a demand before having any comment.

Eisenhower's only comment on Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's pledge last Saturday of all-out support to the Fidel Castro regime, was that he regarded Khrushchev's remarks as very crude.

The Khrushchev pledge brought from Eisenhower over the week-end a warning that the United States would not tolerate the establishment of a regime in Cuba dominated by international communism.

Eisenhower met with newsmen today after he and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter had conferred for near two hours on the Cuban crisis and the new U.S. plan to bolster economic and social standards in Latin American nations.

Eisenhower announced that he has instructed Herter to confer with representatives of these nations.

Fourth term, was boomed for president Sunday by a California crowd of boosters who paraded through the streets of the Biltmore Hotel.

Headed by William P. Gale, chairman of a Faubus-for-president bannermen and passed out Faubus literature.

Gale said the group demonstrated "because in case of any extreme actions on the part of the convention, a foundation will be laid for the encouragement of the proper leadership in defense of constitutional traditions."

As the group shoved through the jammed lobbies there were some cheers, some boos.

Observers speculated that the Cuban leaders might be planning to throw the first blow in an attempt to get the jump on an ex-just, cheap here." The man in the blue suit was H. L. Hunt, one of the richest men in the world, who has more oil millions than Kennedy has delegates.

Despite the support of Hunt and other Texas wheels, the Johnson people keep complaining about all the money the Kennedy people have been spending on their campaign. This is the most moving sign of humility from Texas since Alaska became the biggest state in the union.

Symington was about to go on a TV show when a technician told him, "Senator, you've lost your garter." Symington hoisted the garter, saying, "That's not all I've lost around here."

The incident occurred shortly after the senator learned that his No. 1 supporter, Harry S. Truman, had definitely decided not to attend the convention.

most of the native troops under control, but looting and pillaging was reported continuing. One report said a large number of whites were barricaded in a building in the center of the city.

Premier Patrice Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu left in a Belgian plane for Lubumbashi and Elisabethville in an effort to calm the rebellious troops and the anxious whites.

Another flareup was reported in Stanleyville, started city astride the equator in the northeast. The Belgian radio said Congolese troops mutinied, invaded an airfield and prevented a plane loaded with refugees from taking off.

The Stanleyville rebel disarmed their European officers and took over command, and later "invaded the European city about two miles from the airfield," the Belgian broadcast said.

Leopoldville, however, was generally calm and there was less patrolling by native army units than previously.

A U. S. Air Force Globemaster capable of carrying 200 passengers flew into the Congo to pick up Americans and other refugees. The Globemaster took off from Salisbury airport in Southern Rhodesia for the Belgian Kamina military base in Katanga.

A Belgian government officer still working for the Congolese expressed doubt Lumumba could restore order.

"We can have no confidence in the influence of such leaders over those power-crazed African soldiers," he said.

Refugees were streaming out of the troubled land despite efforts of the Congolese army to check the flow and appeals from the native government to sit tight.

A radio appeal for help came from Yanga, about 100 miles from Stanleyville, declaring "we whites are surrounded and are being attacked."

At least 3,000 whites, mostly Belgians, were waiting in the former French Congo city of Brazzaville, across the Congo River, for planes to Europe. They are crowded into hotels, schools, church halls and temporary refugee camps. Dysentery is reported to have broken out in one camp.

The marriage will be solemnized August 27 in the First Methodist Church, Hope.

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen Worden Erskine: Why don't you give teen-agers a chance?

We girls often discuss your column and agree that lately you're never on our side. You usually say "learn to write before thinking about love," or something like, "Pay attention to your school work and never mind about the boys."

Well, we've got news for you. You can do both. A lot of girls 15, 16 and 17 are really in love and need your help to set them straight. I know, because I'm in love. It could be puppy love but I don't think so. Please, answer my letter in your column because I think a lot of girls feel the same way I do about love and, of course, the attitude toward you. —A Faithful Reader

Dear Faithful Reader: If you will read my column carefully, you'll see I am on the side of all teen-agers, in that I have only their good at heart. But for this very reason they may not always agree with what I say. Who hasn't been in love at 15 or earlier? It is not only possible but natural. The tremendous forces of sex are unleashed within us at the beginning of adolescence. They may either serve us or enslave us, depending upon how well we are able to control them. Sex needs to be understood to understand love, but they are not synonymous. Read the old Greek fable of Daphnis and Chloe, then Dante's account of his love for Beatrice. Both prove that children do fall in love, even though their elders may not take them seriously. I do. That's why I care about what happens to each and every one of you, why I want you to settle for nothing less than the best in life—and that goes for school grades as well as love.

Dear Helen Worden Erskine: Please send me your leaflet on

Dear Helen Worden Erskine: In a recent column, a reader whose husband had been unfaithful, signed herself "Man-hater." It was good to see that you questioned her attitude. When man and woman live together and raise a family, we women find it hard really to hate the father of our children, although we find out he has been untrue to us. I say "us" because I believe this is a universal problem which includes the whole human family. Agreed there is a coldness and "I don't know what to do, say or do" at times in the home which otherwise would not be there. I know how "Man-hater" felt for I fell the same way years ago. Christ, I am faith and love for my children, but I know that they needed their father as I needed my husband. I don't believe in divorce unless absolutely necessary. I believe every man and woman deserves a second chance. My married life has been far from a bed of roses (whose husband?) but I believe that prayer, hope and faith, along with kindness, will finally bring peace, joy and contentment.

This world is not our home. We're just passing through. Some times the going gets rough before it gets better. There are just two of us home now—my husband and I—and we are very happy. Forgive and forget is our motto. I'm not saying it's easy. I enjoy your column. You give wonderful advice. If all followed it, lives would be made happier and this would be a better place to live in. —Experienced—but Happy

Olympic Hope Rides High on Johnson

By MATT KRAMER

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — United States' Olympic hopes in the decathlon are up today now that Hafer Johnson is back, established as the greatest decathlon performer of all times.

He won the finest duel in decathlon history by nosing out C.K. Yang of Formosa in a weekend meet in which both cracked the recognized world decathlon record of 8,357 points.

Johnson, making his first competitive start since automobile accident injuries laid him out last year, ran up 8,693 points. Yang achieved 8,426.

"I'm awfully happy to return the decathlon record to the United States — but Yang almost took it right back from me," Johnson said. "I think it was the high jump which kept me going. When I cleared 5-10 Friday after going only 5-6 or 5-8 in practice, it gave me a boost. But I didn't come to Eugene to set a record. No sir. I just came to make the boat to Rome."

It was not certain until the last event that the 24-year-old Johnson would be able to outdo the 27-year-old Yang, who will compete for Formosa in the Olympic Games.

Yang entered the 1,500-meter race needing a 4-minute, 34.8-second run to squeeze ahead of Johnson.

Tired from earlier events in the two-day National AAU decathlon meet, Yang could manage only 5 minutes, 9.3 seconds.

Over Niagara Odds Figured Million to 1

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The odds against young Roger Woodward's surviving his 161-foot tumble down the Horseshoe Falls were 100 million to one, a state engineer says.

Rodger, 7, was swept over the falls Saturday when a motorboat in which he, his sister, and a family friend were riding capsized in the upper Niagara River. His sister, Deanne, 17, was plucked from the swirling rapids at the brink by two New Jersey tourists.

The boat's owner, James Honeycutt, 40, of Niagara Falls, was missing and presumed drowned.

The life jacket the boy was wearing saved his life, said Roger Williams, executive secretary and chief engineer of the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission.

Rodger landed in a 180-foot well at the base of the falls. Authorities believe that unlike the foot of the American Falls, the base of the Horseshoe Falls is free of fallen rock. There is no record of anyone surviving a plunge over the American Falls.

Rodger was in good condition Sunday night at Greater Niagara General Hospital in Niagara Falls, Ont. Doctors said he didn't need as much as an aspirin.

With both squads featuring right-handed strength, Manager Walter Alston and Al Lopez chose to open with right-handed pitchers. Although late Sunday night neither manager was definite about his starting hurler, all indications were that the opening pitchers would be Bob Friend of the Yankees and Noodles Haddock of Boston.

Casey Versus Hank Tonight at Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -- You don't usually battle a broadsword with a rapier, but such equipment served middleweight Hank Casey to good advantage last night, and tonight he'll be out to repeat his earlier victory over power-punching Henry Hank of Detroit.

Casey, a smooth-boxing boxer from Los Angeles, jumped into the National Boxing Assn. version of the division's top ten which he trimmed Hank last month in a victory over the Yankees.
